Fallingwater Inspiration

Working from the architectural plans prior to the home's construction, the designer created a symmetrical plan, orienting the shower and the tub to face a view of the trees. The wood-clad tray ceiling detail disguises a roof angle on one side of the room, enabling a symmetrical feel. The waterfall bench connecting the makeup console and its supporting end embraces the idea of flowing water of the Frank Lloyd Wright (FLW) Fallingwater house. Wall-mounted faucets enhance the cascading effect of water, mimicking the stream running through the house. Porcelain floors and wall tiles with a subtle stone appearance, teak wood veneer, and metal details enhance the organic look of this contemporary beauty.
