1 Drawing inspiration from the classic trestle table, Waterworks' Arden family, including its single washstand version (shown), offers a bold, yet minimal look. The solid oak base allows pieces to fit both contemporary and rustic room styles. WATERWORKS.COM

2 The Avalon tub by Native Trails is handcrafted from a combination of natural jute fiber and NativeStone cement, which is approximately 40 percent lighter than traditional concrete. Artisans from Vietnam hand form, polish, finish, and seal each tub. Ash, slate, and pearl finishes are available. NATIVETRAILS.NET

3 The shape of an old carpenter's bench inspired Graff's Expo collection, designed by Studio Nespoli e Novara. The series includes an open-body structured vanity; a washbasin that sits atop the vanity with exposed plumbing; hanging shelves that suspend outward from the wall in a ladder shape, with shelves for storage and bars for hanging towels; and a mirror. 4 The Litze bath collection by Brizo evokes modern design with Bauhaus sensibility. The full suite of products includes a single-handle, single-hole deck mount, and wall mount lavatory with or without knurling details (where a pattern of straight, angled, or crossed lines is cut or rolled into the material). Finishes include polished chrome, polished nickel, luxe nickel, and the new luxe gold (shown). BRIZO.COM
