KalingaStone launches 'Terra': their latest marble product for walls

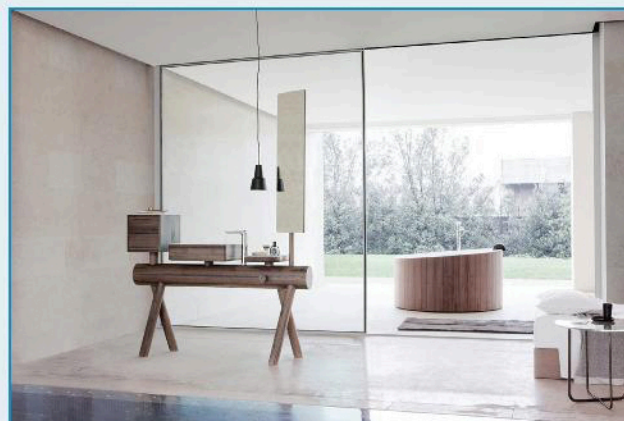

KalingaStone has announced the launch of Terra under its existing Petra series. Manufactured by Classic Marble Company (CMC), the product is aimed at aspirational décor for both residential and commercial spaces, and has been developed especially to quench the present limitations in wall cladding applications. The application areas can range from interior wall cladding for living rooms, kitchens, or other areas including bathroom walls to covering huge exterior walls. The marble, quite aptly named Terra, has an earthy appearance, however is smooth in texture and seamless in installation. A uniform grainy surface pattern throughout its surface forms a subtle wall background for any articulated landscape, antiques or furniture to stand out. Being an engineered marble, Terra does not break or chip easily and is scratch resistant. Its smooth texture is easy to clean, thus making it apt for exterior and bathroom spaces too. Inspired by its Italian lineage, the marble has a look and feel that is almost as rich and real as natural marble.

GRAFF presents Dressage, a luxurious furniture collection for the bathroom

GRAFF presented their most luxurious furniture collection for the bathroom. Dressage is harmony, geometry and versatility. The furniture vanity is a carrying element in solid wood, compact and functional. The solid wood, warm and precious, is the mainstay of the collection. All elements of the water supply and water discharge are located inside, hidden from the eye.

The bathtub is composed of a thermo-formed Corian® DuPont™ panel combined with solid wood. The angular cut all along its entire section creates an invitation for entering and an elevated area that allows one to stretch and relax. It is imagined to live in the centre of a home space, in its free-standing version, with a headrest made of leather and a shelf for storing beauty products. Each object is autonomous and versatile, but can be part of an overall picture which can be arranged gradually in time including the principal ambiances of the house. Inspired craftsmanship and impeccable charm characterise Dressage, a project born from the partnership with Studio Nespoli e Novara.
